Tsinsue Chen, MD

Paarth J. Shah, MD, is a board-certified neurologist with specialty fellowship training in Movement Disorders. He is an Arizona native who grew up in the Ahwatukee area and completed undergraduate studies at ASU. Afterwards, he traveled to New York to pursue medical school at NYMC followed by a residency in Neurology at UC Davis in Sacramento, CA. After residency, he had a passion to pursue further training in Movement Disorders and had the opportunity to return home to Phoenix where he completed his fellowship at the Muhammad Ali Parkinson's Center at Barrow Neurological Institute. Dr. Shah serves on the board of directors for the Huntington's Disease Society of America and is also one of the pioneers of the DBS/Parkinson's specialty center in the East Valley.

Tsinsue Chen, MD received her MD at the University of California San Diego School of Medicine and went on to complete a residency and fellowship at Barrow Neurological Institute, as well as a fellowship of Stereotactic and Functional Neurosurgery at Queen Square National Hospital of Neurology and Neurosurgery in London. Her surgical areas of interest include Deep Brain Stimulation, Trigeminal Neuralgia, Hemifacial Spasm, Brain Tumors, Spinal Tumors, Spinal Stenosis, Cervical Spine Surgery, Lumbar Spine Surgery, and Disc Herniation. Dr. Chen is a member of AANS Young Neurosurgeons Committee and serves as the AANS/CNS Stereotactic and Functional Executive Committee Young Neurosurgeons Liaison.
